The rejection by the Bolaheviki of the British proposal for an immediate ten days truce with Poland reached Lloyd George and Premier Milerand this morning. It came as a severe blow to

Lloyd George's peace efforts.
The Bolshevist refusal of a truce rewarlike aspect, and the best and quick-eat means of giving Poland all possible aid to stem the Bolshevist tide were im-mediately discussed by the Premiers. A last minute decision to include Ar thur J. Balfour in to-day's meeting came as a surprise to British and French circles, and was the cause of much speculation. The accepted view was that Lloyd George desired to avail himself of the mature experience of a statesman such as Balfour in the pres-ent crisis, the acuteness of which there is no attempt to minimize in either the French or the British delegation.

The ultimatum of August 4 and the threatened renewal of the blockade by the British fleet are creating an unfavorable atmosphere and are impediments to an agreement, says a wireless communication from Moscow, quoting a statement made by Foreign Minister
